

Moral Leadership

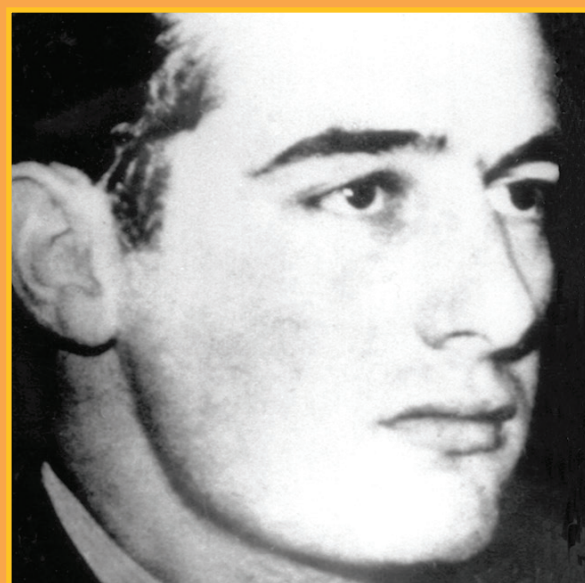

The ability to influence others to accomplish a goal arising from a sense of right and wrong.

During the Holocaust there were individuals who showed moral leadership in rescuing Jews.

André Trocmé
France

The pastor of a Protestant village, André urged the community to uphold their religious values and to help their Jewish neighbors. He inspired villagers from the area to save more than 3,500 Jews, many of whom were smuggled to the Swiss border.

Raoul Wallenberg
Hungary

A Swedish diplomat in Budapest, Raoul issued protective passports to Jews and created safe houses to shelter them. He recruited a staff of hundreds and worked with other diplomats, saving tens of thousands of Jews from deportation.
